THE COMMERCIAL CONVENTION.

What is Expected of Louisville. The reunion of merchants from all sec ions, of all polities, and without reference o polities, is in itself a good thing. But hen we recollect that that very reunion s to take place for the purposes of dis cussing commercial measures, of devisir neans for promoting business facilities of tween the North and South, for improvng the great highways of the nation, and of cultivating amicable relations between the portions of the country which have hith erto stood in a sort of fancied or artificial mtagonism to each other, we are encounaged in the hope that the straight-forward business men of the land can and will yet do more for the practical and permaneut "restoration of the Union" all the blatant braggarts, who, actuated by and the stump about election time. sville is already making extraordinary and guests, of whom 500 are to be invit specially by the city. Signor Schastian, the Barchack Rider, Next week Louisville is to see the darng and wonderful feats of Signor Sebas tian and his little boy Romeo. The St. Louis Post says of them:

The bareback riding, vaulting and pos uring of the incomparable Sebastian are beyond the power of words to describe Standing erect upon the bare back of the most splendidly formed and spirited Arabian horse we have ever seen, with hi infant son, only four years old, gracefully balanced upon the head of his father, they are whirled around the ring at a speed that fairly makes one shudder to behold.

An exciting scene is when the horse is at his most rapid gallop. Schastian takes the boy from his perilous perch and places him upon the head of the horse, and standing himself upon one foot only, the animal is lashed to his utmost speed, both father and son acknowledging the shouts of well-deserved applause by graceful nods

Now, apply the spirit of these facts to Now, apply the spirit of these facts to Lady Byron separation from her hashand, and to her conduct since. In all the accounts received from Lord Byron, by Lady Bessington, by Moore, by Captain Mcdwin, Byron is made, on all occasions, and to the last, to assert that he introduced by the refere bethin talk intending to take plassesion of the pulp that after the parameters of the property of the pr sions, and to the last, to assert that he never knew the cause why Lady Byron separated from him. Mrs. Stowe says that Byron in a manner drove her from his house. I believe, and all the account of this controversy bear that impression, that the simple fact was that Byron carnestly neged her to go to her father and endeavor to obtain money to get the sheriffs officers out of the house, which the analysis of the house, which the analysis of the sheriffs of the sheriff of the sheriffs of the sheriff of the sheriffs of the sheriff of the s officers out of the house, which the announcement of his having married a great heiress hal brought upon him. On the way. Moore says on Byron's anthority, she wrote to him in an affectionately playful humor; and Captain Medwin, on Byron's authority too says, opening her note with the phrase. "Dear luck." There can be little doubt that the can both railered conduct was from her father representing that Byron would run through her fortune, and see must leave him. aid of tillibustoring in Congress and references to the Reconstruction Committee, have the whole question adjourned. By this means the whole question adjourned. By this means the present officeholders will be permitted to serve at least twelve months longer. The originators of the scheme, it is said, receive the strong support of both Butler and Boutwell.

Difficulty About Pensions.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—A difficulty has arisen between Major Calhoun, the Pension Agent, and a claim agent, which will delay the payments to pensioners in the interior for some time. Heretofore pension agents have paid all claims on proper vouchers in greenbacks, but now refuse to pay anything but theeks to the order of the claiments, which agents and attorneys refuse to accept.

THE REBELLION IN CUBA.

MADRID, Sept. 17.—It is thought the Cabinet at Washington has become somewhat more conciliatory since the reception of a dispatch from Mr. Sickles, American Minister, that the over-excited temper of the Spanish people will compel the Government to continue the war for the suppression of the rebellion in Cuba.

It has been pretty accurately ascertainrevolution and chances of its repression, as well as the probable future of the island, as regards its form of government and right of rule, were discussed. The Emperor advised an amicaule arrangement between the Spanish authorities and Cabinet in Washington and the matter of the American desire for the acquisition of territory by purchase, adding toward the close of his remarks his opinion, to the effect that if war continued with its present attendant barbarities President Grant would be compelled to interfere be tween the contending parties if only on behalf and for the cause of hamanity. General Prim replied that he was himself personally willing to negotiate with the American authorities in the direction indicated by the rules of France, but that Spain has countrymen at large who are opposed to such a course. Napoleon, in reply, advised Gen. Prim and the Spaniards to initate in this case his own example and give up Cuba just as he had given up Mexico before it was too late to do so with honor.
